Building the Foundation for Future Value Creation

Our New Headquarters: The Visions and Challenges Behind Fostering Co-Creation and Innovation

The Ajinomoto Group is advancing an asset-light business model through the transfer of its former headquarters while strengthening value creation through intangible assets such as people, technology, and organizational capabilities.

As part of this initiative, Ajinomoto Co., Inc. relocated to its new headquarters in July 2026. The new office is designed to support the well-being of each employee and empower them to take initiative, while also encouraging collaboration and co-creation across functions and regions to generate new value and innovation.

In this video, we introduce the ideas, aspirations, and thoughtful design behind the new headquarters. We highlight the office environment created through extensive discussions among employees as part of the cross-functional project “TRY&A-CROSS,” as well as features such as exhibition spaces and a live kitchen that promote dialogue and engagement with customers, business partners, and investors.

When people connect and diverse knowledge and experiences come together, new ideas and challenges emerge.

We invite you to take a closer look at our new headquarters and discover how it is designed to inspire the next generation of value creation.
